Course Description:
In Comparative Religious Ethics students will explore and examine the nature of various religious ethical traditions and how these ethical perspectives are grounded in text, culture and tradition. In this course we will utilize a narrative approach—both ancient and contemporary myths and stories—as the point of departure for the study of the ethical traditions of Judaism, Christianity, Islam, Hinduism and Buddhism. We will also consider the critical approaches of feminist/womanist religious ethics.

Much has been made recently of the notion of “moral values,” a phrase that many seem to take for granted. What is assumed in the term’s utterance appears often to be the existence of some kind of universal (or at the very least, universal American) agreement on what these “values” are or, that there is a meaning inherent within the term itself. What are “Christian values” and who gets to name them? How do these resemble or differ from the ethical foundations (or values) of other religious traditions? What are the ethical obligations of Muslims and what constitutes the foundation of these? What are the stories of Hinduism’s “heroes” that exemplify living a noble and virtuous life? Is religion even necessary to an ethical life? This course will provide the student with the opportunity to explore these and many more questions and issues within the comparative study of religious ethics.

Course Goals and Learning Outcomes: Students will critically read texts that demonstrate religious ethical perspectives, gain knowledge of the cultural contexts that informed these ethical traditions, think analytically about religion and become knowledgeable of the basic tenets of a variety of religious traditions.

General Education Learning Outcomes:

This course also satisfies the General Education requirements for a course in the Humanities, which address these two additional Learning Outcomes: 1) Students analyze how ideas are represented, interpreted or valued in various expressions of human culture; 2) Students examine relevant primary source materials as understood by the discipline and interpret the material in writing assignments.

Students will demonstrate successful mastery of the General Education Learning Outcome 1 and 2 by crafting a well-organized, analytical, 3-4 page paper that applies womanist ethical perspectives to the primary source, The Color Purple by Alice Walker.

Additional Course Notes

Attendance Policy: Class attendance and participation in discussions are mandatory. Four absences will be allowed. Five or more absences may result in a lower final grade but MAY be excused with proper medical documentation. Eight absences will result in your being dropped from the class, which will earn you an F for the course. Please note that a memo from CofC Health Services does NOT automatically qualify as an ‘excused absence.’ Final determination of an excused absence always lies with the Instructor.

SNAP: If you have a disability that qualifies you for academic accommodation, please present a letter from the Center for Disability Services at the beginning of the semester. For more information regarding accommodation and the SNAP program, see: http://www.cofc.edu/~cds/index.htm.

Honor Code: The Code of Honor found in the Student Handbook will be strictly enforced. Plagiarism and cheating will not be tolerated and WILL be reported to the Honor Board. According to the Student Handbook plagiarism includes but is not limited to:
* The verbatim repetition, without acknowledgement, of the writings of another author. All significant phrases, clauses, or passages, taken directly from source material must be enclosed in quotation marks and acknowledged either in the text itself or in footnotes/endnotes.
* Borrowing without acknowledging the source.
* Paraphrasing the thoughts of another writer without acknowledgement.
* Allowing any other person or organization to prepare work which one then submits as his/her own.

Classroom Code of Conduct
—Selections taken from the Student Handbook, published by the President's Advisory Committee in cooperation with the Office of the President.
Your professor expects that you as a student:
1. Will be attentive and courteous during class.
2. Will complete the assigned work according to the course schedule.
3. Do not cut classes, come in late, or leave early. If you ever are late for class, enter in complete silence and do not walk between the class and the professor. Never leave during class unless you absolutely must. Leaving for a short break and then returning is not acceptable. The professor is not a TV set, but is a person addressing the class, and it is rude to leave when someone is addressing you.
4. Turn off cell phones, pagers, and all other electronic devices.
5. Visible and noisy signs of restlessness are rude as well as disruptive to others. If you cannot sit still or stay awake, you should not be taking a college class. Do not begin packing your book bag or otherwise indicate that you think it is time for class to come to an end; wait for the professor to dismiss class. If the class period has ended but the professor has not finished and you cannot stay any longer, leave in complete silence.
6. Come to class prepared to work. Your professor expects you to prepare for class by completing reading and homework assignments. If you are unprepared for class, this may prevent you from participating in a class activity. Do not present your lack of preparation as a problem for the professor to solve or excuse.
